Acknowledgements

Pascal Denis, Eric McCready, Alexis Palmer, and Brian Reese
University of Texas at Austin

The present volume is a collection of papers presented at the 8th Texas Linguistics Society conference held March 5-7, 2004 at the University of Texas at Austin. The theme of TLS is different each year. In 2004 the conference was devoted to Issues at the Semantics-Pragmatics Interface. In our estimation, the conference was a resounding success, and we would like to take the opportunity now to thank all of those who contributed to the project.

First and foremost, we want to thank the conference participants and audiences for making TLS 8 such an exciting and rewarding intellectual experience. We would especially like to thank our keynote speakers, Nicholas Asher, David Beaver, James Pustejovsky, Bernhard Schwarz and Carlota Smith, not only for their engaging talks, but for leading the way during question periods and for the insightful comments they gave on the presentations, from which the papers in the present volume developed, and for improving the conference experience for all of our presenters.

Second, TLS is an entirely student organized conference. As such, we rely heavily on contributions from a variety of organizations and individuals, both financial and otherwise. For their generous contributions, we thank the Departments of Linguistics, French and Italian, Philosophy, Germanic Studies, Slavic and Eurasian Studies, the University Co-Op and the Senate of College Councils for their generous monetary donations and Brian Price of the Department of Linguistics for his time and expertise in managing our budget.

The following individuals graciously agreed to read and review abstracts as part of our program committee: Nicholas Asher, Chris Barker, Rajesh Bhatt, David Beaver, Joan Busquets, Ronnie Cann, Claire Gardent, Daniel Hardt, Jonas Kuhn, Norihiro Ogata, Chris Piñón, James Pustejovsky, Philippe Schlenker, Carlota Smith, Matthew Stone, Lucia Tovena, and Rob van der Sandt. We thank them for their time and effort.

Rajesh Bhatt served as the faculty advisor to the organizing committee and kindly volunteered his home for the conference party. The party on Saturday night went quite late, and halfway through that late night we the organizers realized the gaffe we had made by scheduling Rajesh as the first talk Sunday morning. Rajesh voiced not even a single word of complaint, graciously allowed the party to go on to its natural endpoint, and gave an excellent talk the next morning. For this and many other things, we thank him.

Our thanks go also to Nikki Seifert for all of her hard work. In addition, many graduate students from the Department of Linguistics at UT-Austin worked with the organizing committee, seeing to all the small details required to execute a conference.

Proceedings of the 2004 Texas Linguistics Society Conference: Issues at the Semantics–Pragmatics Interface

edited by Pascal Denis, Eric McCready, Alexis Palmer, and Brian Reese

Cascadilla Proceedings Project   Somerville, MA   2006

Web access and citation information

This entire proceedings can also be viewed on the web at www.lingref.com. Each paper has a unique document # which can be added to citations to facilitate access. The document # should not replace the full citation.

This paper can be cited as:

Denis, Pascal, Eric McCready, Alexis Palmer, and Brian Reese. 2006. Acknowledgements. In Proceedings of the 2004 Texas Linguistics Society Conference, ed. Pascal Denis et al., v. Somerville, MA: Cascadilla Proceedings Project.

or:

Denis, Pascal, Eric McCready, Alexis Palmer, and Brian Reese. 2006. Acknowledgements. In Proceedings of the 2004 Texas Linguistics Society Conference, ed. Pascal Denis et al., v. Somerville, MA: Cascadilla Proceedings Project. www.lingref.com, document #1500.